Town welcomes assistant chief

By WILLIAM HOLLOMAN
Staff Writer

"This is a special night" were opening comments made by Mayor Ray McDonald Sr. last week during the swearing-in ceremony of the town's first assistant police chief.

She is 49-year-old Linda Tyson, a 22-year veteran of law enforcement who brings with her a wealth of experience.

She takes the position with the rank of Captain.

Mrs. Tyson joins the department that has made a complete turnaround during the past several years and today sets an example of the latest in law enforcement technology, equipment, and training credentials.

It is a department that has become known for its progressive achievements.

Captain Tyson comes from the Duplin County Sheriff's Department, where she rose through the ranks.

Her duties here will run the scale up and down, including working with Chief Tommy Brown in initiating programs aimed at continuing to make law enforcement services here at the highest level of excellence to ensure safety of the town's citizens.

In a statement issued by town manager Charles Brown, he wrote, "The Town of Mount Olive's Mayor, Town Board members, Police Chief, and I want the Town's residents to welcome Captain Tyson. She was hired because she is the most qualified officer ever to serve in the Mount Olive Police Department."

The town manager said since the swearing in ceremony, he has received an email from Mayor McDonald, who is now on vacation.

He said the mayor said in the email, "I think her coming to Mount Olive is the best thing that has happened in a long time. Every person that I have talked to has been very pleased. As soon as I return home I would like the opportunity to meet with her and tell her that in person."

Brown said from day one that he and Chief Brown (no relations) have been more than impressed with Captain Tyson's credentials.

He said her training began in 1995 at James Sprunt Institute.

Brown said prior to coming here, she served with distinction "with one of the finest law enforcement agencies in the State of North Carolina in the Duplin County Sheriff's Department.

Her credentials go on and on.

She is a trained hostage negotiator, and certified in Police Law and Internal Affairs Investigations.

Mayor calls for tax hike

By WILLIAM HOLLOMAN
Staff Writer

Mount Olive's Mayor says the town needs a five-cent property tax hike to offset the loss of some $100,000 in state revenue and to continue making law enforcement here a top priority of excellence.

Mayor Ray McDonald Sr. said the additional revenue the tax hike would generate can be used to increase entry-level pay for police officers here, as well as provide the financing to set up a scholarship program to assist potential officers with the cost of training to go into the profession.

He said such a program would be beneficial by requiring those who received financial assistance to sign an agreement to serve a minimum of three years in the local department.

The mayor said he has discussed the idea with other members of the Board of Commissioners, and they too are supportive of the tax hike and the idea.

Town manager Charles Brown said the tax hike is "long overdue," and it has already been added into the proposed next fiscal year budget that will most likely be up for public review and comment next month.

The proposed nickel property tax hike would generate an additional $117,000 to the town's general fund budget, and help offset the loss of some $50,000 in normal state revenue and the increase in health care expense for employees.

Mayor McDonald said he has strong concerns about providing the best law enforcement that can be provided here.

"There are good people out there who want to become law enforcement officers, but it cost money to go to school. The way things are in this country today, particularly in law enforcement, we are committed to doing whatever we have to

Rules to change for solar farms

By WILLIAM HOLLOMAN
Staff Writer

Currently, there are five solar farm operations that are under the Town of Mount Olive jurisdiction.

However the future terms of their presence have been changed.

Mount Olive Commissioners in monthly session last week said future sites will come under a special use permit and must be approved by not only the town's planning board, but also the board of commissioners.

Commissioners said they feel the change in the zoning process gives them more control.

Previously, such operations had no restrictions outside A&R zoning, and required only planning board approval.

There were major concerns raised by town board members that land that could be needed for residential construction in the future was being tied up under long-term lease agreements for solar farms.

Right now, approximately 400 acres of land is legally

Building's new look ready for Festival weekend

A few thousand dollars worth of landscaping improvements are currently under way at the Main Street housing authority complex.

It is a facility that has just gone through about $50,000 worth of structural improvements, both in and out, that have made the 1800's structure compatible to other new facilities in the area.

The building had become an eyesore, and was under consideration for demolition.

However, a local contractor, Miller

Construction, agreed to bring the building up to modern code.

Town officials say what the construction company said would happen did happen, and they are more than pleased with the end result.

Town proposes another small pay hike for all its employees

By WILLIAM HOLLOMAN
Staff Writer

The Town of Mount Olive is less than three months away from a new operational budget to keep things going and one of items under discussion is salaries for town employees.

As in the current budget, the proposed budget for next year contains a proposal to provide an across-the-board 2.5 percent pay hike for the town's labor force.

The cost of living salary hike would cost the town about $40,000 for its labor force of 56 employees, he said.

The town manager has some expressions of major concern about the employees.

"At this point in time, we have provided a 2.5 percent increase for our employees and that essentially just keeps them up with the cost of living," said the town manager.

He said he would "love to find a way to help employees out."

"It is sort of embarrassing to me to have some of our employees who are working for the Town of Mount Olive and being paid at the poverty level," said Brown.

He went on to say, "It just does not seem right to me and I think the mayor and the board of commissioners agree with me."

He continued in saying, "If there is any way in the world that we can correct that, I certainly hope we will do it."

He said the proposed five cent property tax hike (see page 1) will not help in that area, because all it will do is offset the loss of usual revenue.

Brown admitted some of that additional money would be used for law enforcement, but it does not mean he will not look at finding some way to financially help all the employees of the town.

POLICE OFFICER OF THE QUARTER - Officer Ed Dillard has been named as Mount Olive's second officer of the quarter, a recognition of his service beyond the call of duty. on to say she is trained in Federal and State Drug Investigations, investigation of crimes in long term care facilities that allows her to provide a voice for voiceless victims, and is also certified in procedures related to law enforcement officers carrying weapons on aircraft.

Captain Tyson is trained in tools and resources to resolve missing and unidentified person cases, and is also certified in anti terrorism, both state and local.

Other qualifications include training in death investigations and cold cases, and certification in burglary and robbery investigation.

"Homicide investigations, taser training, UNC School of Government Training for Sheriffs and Jailers are all part of Captain Tyson's preparation to hold the position of second in command in the Mount Olive Police Department," said the town manager.

He went on to say her long list of qualifications continues with training in examining false ID documents, sexual assault cases, and sex related homicides and deaths investigation. She also has drug resistance education and training.

It continues, Brown said. She is trained in radar forensic interviews, as well as other interviewing and interrogation techniques.

Captain Tyson is qualified in dealing with some of the most difficult crimes a law enforcement officer can encounter, namely child fatality cases and child sexual abuse, and computer crimes against children.

"She has served admirably in all facets of law enforcement and everyone involved with law enforcement in Mount Olive welcomes her as a part of the team," said Brown.

Brown concluded in saying that he and the Police Chief searched at great length to find the ideal second in command.

"We are convinced that we found the individual that exceeds our greatest expectations, based on her skills and qualifications and her broad based support within our community," concluded the town manager.

Ms. Tyson, a native of Kenansville, is a 1984 graduate of James Kenan High School, and her husband, James, is a resources officer at that school.

The Tyson's have a 17-year-old daughter, Tamara, who is a student at James Kenan.

leased on a long-term base for a solar farm operation.

Previously, the town board directed a moratorium on any additional solar farm operations, pointing out that concerns were being raised.

Board members said they wanted to make sure such operations were being allowed in the proper zone classification.

Town manager Charles Brown said he thinks the action of the board was appropriate.

"Now, they have some control over it," he said.

The town manager said preserving potential land for residential development is important to the growth of Mount Olive.

"If we are going to grow, then we have got to have a place for people to live, and I think the action taken by the board was a step in the right direction," Brown said.

Why God Made Mothers...

God had said -- I need someone to get up at midnight and embrace the most precious tender flesh close to her warmth and rock though she can hardly stand and change the diaper and the sheets and the leaked on, leaked through, and leaked down clothes though she'll have to change them in the morning, at noon, and at night, and next week and that won't change for years So God made a Mother. Then God had said I need somebody with a strong heart. Strong enough for toddler tantrums and teenage testing, yet broken enough to fall on her knees and pray, pray, pray. Someone who knows that in every difficult place is exactly where you extend grace, who looks a hopeful child in the eye and says yes, even though she knows that a yes can mean a mess but it gives the opportunity to bless, who has the courage to keep letting go because she's holding on to Me. So God made a mother. God said I need somebody who can shape a soul and find shoes on Sunday mornings and get grass stains out of Levis. And make dinner out of nothing and do it again 75,787 times, and keep kids off the road and out of the toilet and in clean underwear and mainly alive though she's mainly losing her mind and will put in an 80 hour week by Wednesday night but can fit in just one more load of laundry. And keep on going another eighty hours because raising generations matters and giving thanks around the table matters and making memories matters. So God made a mother... It had to be somebody who could slick down cow-licks and tie up high tops just -right tight. Who could pretend she remembered algebra and how to get home from here and that really, she was just fine, that it might just be the silly onions. Somebody who would run for the catch, jump on a trampoline and play one fierce game of basketball and not give a thought to all those aching weary bones and joints. Somebody who'd stay up late with a science project that never ends, who'd get up early for the game in the rain, somebody who'd wave at the door until the tail-lights were out of sight and still be smiling brave So God made a mother. It had to be somebody willing to keep loving when it made no sense because that's what love does. Somebody who knew that patience cradles us through our suffering. That rejoicing is always possible because there is always, always something to be thankful for. And that life is not to be hurried, but is a gift -- so just. slow. down. There are children at play here and we don't want anyone to get hurt and the hurry makes us hurt. Somebody willing to feed and lead, lay down her life and pick up her cross, give of her time because they have her heart. Someone who knows that we all fall short -- and what matters is what we then do after that. Someone who could humble herself by saying a sincere sorry that covers a multitude of sins. And who'd bow her head at night over her little ones asleep -- and thank her Father for this miraculous life that is the magic ingredient to this hectic world. So God made a Mother.

News from Carver Elementary School

Kindergarten is busy doing spring and weather activities. They are learning the sight words out and about to add to their list of known sight words. In Math, kindergarteners are still working on counting to 100 as well as decomposing numbers and ways to make 10.

Carver first graders are becoming fabulous readers as they continue to learn new sound chunks, reading strategies, and how to answer written comprehension questions. In Math, students are developing critical thinking skills as they work on addition and subtraction word problems, equivalent equations, and algebraic representations. In Science, many first graders are studying about natural resources such as water, rocks, minerals, and soil. This past week students enjoyed a special visit from Ms. Suzi Wharton from the Wayne County Humane Society. Ms. Wharton brought her Dutch Shepherd Millie and did a presentation in each first grade class on being a responsible pet owner.

Second grade has had a busy few weeks. They have been studying animal life cycles in Science. Some students completed an animal project that included a report and a diorama of an animal habitat. This week, mallard duck eggs will be delivered so that students can observe them hatching and see the life cycle firsthand. Thank you to Dr. Cariveau and the University of Mount Olive Biology Department for providing Carver second graders with this opportunity. Classes have a field trip to Marbles Museum in Raleigh on April 22nd. In order to prepare for the trip, some of the Social Studies topics include the following: wants and needs, economics, banking, goods and services, and saving money. Second graders had a field trip last week

Soon-to-be UMO grad made Wise decision to transfer two years ago

Chad Wise, a first generation college student at the University of Mount Olive, grew up in Charlotte. His parents, Ronnie and Dana Wise, moved the family to Mount Olive during his junior year of high school. After graduating, Wise attended other institutions in both North Carolina and Florida. However, he never felt like he found the right fit. Then in January 2013, Wise transferred to the University of Mount Olive.

"I had briefly attended other colleges," Wise said, "but I never felt that the faculty and staff were invested in me personally. However, at the University of Mount Olive everyone went out of their way to be there for me. From the Admissions staff to the professors in my classes, everyone was available to make sure that I was successful."

In the two years that Wise has attended UMO he has become heavily involved in many campus organizations. The experiences he has gained both inside and outside the classroom have transformed who he is and what he hopes to become.

"Soon after I became a student at UMO, the Admissions Office approached me about becoming a Tour Guide to show visiting students and their families around campus," Wise shared. "Being a Tour Guide enabled me to share all of the things I love about the University with others. I was able to tell potential students why their education at UMO would be one of the best experiences of their lives."

Working as a Tour Guide, Wise quickly learned about different opportunities at the institution. By the end of his first semester, he had applied and was accepted as a University Ambassador.

"Becoming an Ambassador has been one of the best, most meaningful decisions I have ever made," Wise stated. "I have built lasting relationships with many people, including Dr. and Mrs. Philip P. Kerstetter, our University President and First Lady."

As an Ambassador Wise has also participated in on-campus events, traveled out of state, and more.

"I have traveled with the Ambassadors to Disney and to Philadelphia," Wise said. "I have also attended various events on campus where I have represented the school to those who are newly acquainted with us. One of the things I like most about being an Ambassador is the opportunity to show others what the University represents in the community."

Now in his senior year, Wise is participating in an internship within the University's Office of Institutional Advancement.

Wise commented about the experience, "Through the internship I have learned that the Office of Institutional Advancement is responsible for developing understanding and support of the institution among its

Trojans split twinbill with Belmont Abbey

No. 12 University of Mount Olive used a 10 run seventh inning to take the series finale 22-2 and split a double header with Belmont Abbey College on Saturday for Conference Carolinas baseball in Belmont.

Mount Olive (35-12 Overall, 19-7 Conference Carolinas) and Belmont Abbey

(23-20, 16-11) exchanged home runs in game one as Anthony Dimino and Jason Morozowski homered in the first and fourth innings respectfully.

In the nightcap, Zak Orison started off the first inning in game two for Mount Olive with a lead-off walk. The Trojans did not register a hit until seven batters later, as the previous six batters were walked to start off the game.

Belmont Abbey scored its first run in the third, but the Trojans countered in the fourth, fifth, and sixth as they scored at least two runs in each of those innings.

Saints fall to Falcons in rematch

By MICHAEL JAENICKE
Staff Writer

Local teams have been having trouble getting games in since spring break, as it seems like rain shows up on all of the days when the teams are scheduled to play.

However, C.B. Aycock and Southern Wayne did manage to get their second meeting of the season on the baseball diamond completed on Friday night.

The Golden Falcons made it count, though, with a 12-3 win over Southern Wayne in Dudley.

Aycock scored seven times in the first two innings and added four more in the fifth.

While Kyle Davis picked up his third win of the season, Bobby Hampton and Jacob Naughton matched his two-inning stint and Jacob Sanford hurled an inning.

Hampton and Trent Herndon supplied five of Aycock's seven hits. CBA chased losing pitcher Matt Holland after nicking him for five runs in less than an inning of work. Southern Wayne's mound men coughed up nine walks.

While showing patience at the plate, Aycock ran with abandon on the basepaths, swiping nine bases. A double steal by Chandler Matthews and Hampton plated the first run and more than set the tone. Hampton, who was 3 for 3 and drove in four runs, singled Matthews, who had walked, to third base.

A single by Hampton, double by Herndon and sacrifice fly by Naughton keyed the fourth frame uprising.

Holland's two hits in three plate appearances supplied one of the few highlights for the Saints, whose coach Jackson Massey lost for the fourth-straight time against Charles Davis, his prep coach at Aycock.

Sanford, Matthews and Cameron Kornegay each scored twice, while Herndon drove home a pair.

Southern Wayne, 2-13 overall and winless in Eastern Carolina 4-A/3-A Conference play, saw its dim playoff hopes all but dashed with the loss.

Aycock, 11-4, 4-3, all but assured itself of a place in the 3-A state playoffs. Whether it gets the ECC's top 3-A seed is still up for grabs as Eastern Wayne (10-3, 5-2), which owns a win over CBA this season, kept pace with a 3-2 win over South Central (8-5, 4-4).

● In the softball game between the two schools, Aycock notched a 14-0 win over Southern Wayne on Friday as Taylor Waddell and Shingleton combined to limit the Lady Saints to one hit.

Aycock's 10-run third broke open the game.

Waddell whiffed five and didn't allow a hit or walk in her three innings of work. Shingleton allowed one hit in her two frames of work.

Wheeler belted a triple and double that drove in three runs. Thompson had two hits in three trips and drove in a run.

Home - The Boovs are a peculiar set of aliens that have a knack at fleeing the Gorgs, their enemies. They are always moving from one place to the next hoping that one day they will find a safe place that they will be able to call home. Their fearful fleeing leads them to colonize Earth and upon taking over, they quickly isolate all of the humans on the continent of Australia, or so they thought. One girl, named Gratuity and nicknamed "Tip" was left behind with her beloved plump cat, Pig. They are on a quest of their own to find her mother who she was separated from when the Boovs recolonized Earth. Tip crosses paths with a Boov named Oh, named so for his notorious knack of making mistakes which has earned him the dislike of his fellow Boov. Trying to fit in, Oh puts together a house warming party and when his neighbors don't show up he sends out an addressed invite to the entire universe which includes the Gorgs. Oh who is now a fugitive agrees to help Tip find her mom if she lets him tag along. Oh must now find the courage to stand in the face of adversity and the threat of the Gorgs rather than fleeing like the Boov have done so many times before. This rated-PG animated ninety four minute film features the voices of famous pop stars Rihanna and Jennifer Lopez as well as other well-known actors Jim Parsons and Steve Martin. It is an inspiring and warming movie about the love that families have for each other and understanding of those who are different from us. I recommend this mainly to families who have young children but I truly enjoyed this movie myself and also recommend it to those who love animated films.

Furious 7 - Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham) seeks to get revenge on Dominic Toretto (Vin Diesel), Brian O'Conner (Paul Walker), Hobbs (Dwayne Johnson) and the rest of their crew because of the events of London. Dom and the crew must fight to survive as Shaw has already killed one of their family.

This installment of the Fast and Furious franchise isn't anything new, granted it has a little bit more sentimentality because of Paul Walker's tragic accident in real life. The first movie was about street racing and as the franchise has grown so have the explosions, the ogling of girls, the cars, and the cast. If you're looking for a high octane action movie then you came to the right place. The over-the-top violence, explosions, and ogling of scantily clad girls may be excessive for younger teens. It was a fitting end to a cool franchise. I give it a 4 out of 5 tickets.

Rated PG-13 for prolonged frenetic sequences of violence, action and mayhem, suggestive content and brief strong language.

WORK COMPLETED - New landscaping at the Mount Olive Housing Authority complex that has also undergone major interior and exterior renovations has been completed by J&R Landscaping Company of Mount Olive. It is a $4,000 beautification project and completes all the work at the old 1800's era structure that had become an eyesore and was nearing condemnation proceedings. (Contributed photo)

Olive is putting the final touches on the structure and how it looks to the public.

“We are making it look like what a landscape would probably have looked like back in the 1800’s,” said town manager Charles Brown.

He said the new landscape will include all the shrubbery and flowers of that period.

Brown said the work should be completed now.

He said the estimated cost is approximately $4,000.

It will complete the work at the structure that sits beside the new Veterans Memorial and across the street from the new multi--million dollar regional library, as well as a new parking lot adjacent to it all.

The town manager said just less than 100 feet away, local resident Gerald Bell “has done an outstanding job” in bringing the old Glenn-Martin Drug Store building at Main and Center streets up to code.

“It is amazing what he has done at this point,” the town manager said.

Brown also said Southern Bank, which has its corporate headquarters across the street from the old drugstore, plans to pave a vacant lot it purchased directly across the street for parking.

An old building there was demolished.

Trojans in top 10 after first day of golf championships

Playing in his first conference tournament, University of Mount Olive freshman John Thatch shot an even-par 72 and is tied for sixth place out of 40 golfers after the first round of the 2015 Conference Carolinas Men’s Golf Championship Sunday at Bryan Park in Greensboro. The Trojans broke 300 as a team and are only nine shots out of second place, but had to settle for seventh place out of eight teams after the first round.

Thatch eagled the par-5 third hole, but gave up three shots to par and finished with a 1-over-par 37 on the front nine. He birdied the par-5 11th hole and recorded eight pars on the back nine for a 1-under-par 35. Thatch is only four shots out of the lead.

Nick Adams (34-41—75) and Sebastian Andersen (37-38—75) are tied for 22nd. Adams birdied the third hole and the par-4 eighth hole to make the turn at 2-under-par. Andersen birdied the par-4 ninth hole and the par-3 14th hole.

Wise said the internship has given him the experience he needs to begin a career ahead of the curve.

After graduating from UMO in May, Wise hopes to take the knowledge he has gained through his degree and the experiences he has had during his internship to begin his own career in Institutional Advancement.

“The people at the University of Mount Olive have always been invested in my education,” he said, “I have learned that one of the advantages of private education, at least at UMO, is that the classes are smaller, and the professors have time to be more invested in me. I am more than a number, I am a person. Through Institutional Advancement I would like to help other students share that same experience. My education has meant so much to me, and I want to give other people the same advantages that UMO has given me.”

Warsaw votes up on cemetery, but rejects street-legal golf carts

By JOHN CATE
Editor

The monthly meeting of the Town of Warsaw Board of Commissioners took just 26 minutes to complete, but the board accomplished quite a bit in that half-hour. The meeting actually opened with two residents who had requests of the commissioners to be heard before any other business was transacted.

Mr. Haywood Blakley opened the meeting by speaking to the board about Taylor Field, a town park that he says has been neglected for about 40 years. The facility is currently used for youth soccer matches. Blakley told the board that the bathrooms on the site don't work and claimed that soccer players are forced to urinate in the open. His neighbor, who lives by the facility, is offended by this. Blakley asked the board to either bring the park up to standard or close it, and move the soccer matches to another facility with proper amenities.

Ms. Mildred Bowden of 114 W. John St. addressed the board about a problem with a ditch that she believes is the town's responsibility to maintain. She requested help in getting it fixed. Town Manager Shawn Condon said he thinks the ditch in question is on private property, but told Bowden that will look into it.

Cemetery ordinance

Condon then spoke to the board in regard to an ordinance changing the administration of the Town of Warsaw Cemetery, which has been under the control of a group of trustees since 1974.

The ordinance would do away with the board of trustees for the cemetery, and it was agreed that the organization was no longer necessary due to the fact that the Town of Warsaw had already recently taken over full oversight of the facility.

Condon stated that another significant change in the ordinance is that the town must be informed of any new interment within five days, for accurate record keeping.

The board to adopt the ordinance and then, in a separate vote, dissolved the cemetery trustees.

Golf Cart ordinance

The board then moved on to a discussion of a proposed ordinance that would allow the use of golf carts on town-maintained streets.

Current North Carolina law allows local governments to decide for themselves if they want to allow the use of standard golf carts on locally-maintained roadways. However, such vehicles are not allowed on state-maintained roads unless they meet a strict set of N.C. Department of Transportation regulations. The town of Warsaw, according to the town's police chief, only has one such cart in the entire town.

The proposed ordinance would have allowed ordinary, non-DOT standard, golf carts on town roadways. Those who want to use them would have to pay a registration fee of $35 to the police department, and the police would be responsible for enforcing the regulations and inspection of the carts. Carts would be limited to a maximum speed of 35 mph, with no use in DOT streets unless crossing over on a town street.

Police said they would provide anyone getting license with a list of prohibited streets. No one under 16 would be allowed to operate a cart, and no four-wheelers would be licensed for use, because state law makes no provision for them.

Faison and Rose Hill are the only Duplin County towns that allow the golf carts on streets, and impose a 20 mph speed limit on them.

Then the debate began, and the opinion of the board turned decidedly against the proposed ordinance.

Commissioner Al Searles said that Warsaw is so chopped up with state roads that it's not that feasible to even use the carts, and that the planning board had declined to sign off on a similar proposal years ago when discussion came up.

After further discussion, Commissioners Joal Smith and Tommy Jones moved to reject the ordinance, and the board agreed.

In other business, the town agreed to donate a town owned fire truck to the Warsaw Fire Department. They also approved a resolution supporting the Brody School of Medicine at ECU. There was talk in Raleigh of reducing funding to it, but Governor Pat McCrory said last week that he felt it should be fully funded.

do to protect our citizens," said the mayor.

The entry-level salary for local officers today is just slightly below the state average, but the town manager said additional revenue would help go toward making sure the town does not fall any further behind.

No one remembers when the last property tax was implemented here, but there have been two decreases in the past.

The property tax rate here was decreased from $0.74 cents per $100 valuation to $0.69 cents in 1994, and then dropped again in 2003 from $0.69 to $0.59, which is the current rate.

Officials say that the 15 cent tax drop over that period of time meant the loss of some $12 to $13 million in local revenue.

The town manager summed it all up when he said, "I think this is something that is long overdue. Anyone who is not familiar with the tax rate in Mount Olive needs to know it is 15 cents lower than it was in 1993."

Brown said the town has struggled since, and is at the point now that if something is not done, the finances of the town will get behind again.

He said the tax hike proposed will help the town in its effort for the best in law enforcement.

"I think some of the things the mayor has suggested are great ideas, and we are at the point that we are starting to catch up in the law enforcement arena, yet if we don't keep up, we are going to get behind again," the town manager explained.

Brown went on to say that Mount Olive, and other municipalities across the state, are dealing with a state government that continues to take away local revenue.

The town manager did say that the property tax increase will barely offset the loss of usual revenue.

"It just keeps us from going backwards," he explained.
